Developing Practical English Language skills and communication skills in English

This is an American school style, creative English class. Students learn and improve their English skills through a variety of fun educational activities such as science, math, and social studies taught in English. Students think for themselves, develop English language skills, and other learning abilities. The program helps students become strong readers with a lot of assistance from a native English teacher (and a partner teacher)* as we choose books from the school library to match their level. The program also aims to enable students to speak out using their own words.

==== ● Program Points ● =====

•Speaking

We help them learn about everyday English words and phrases, verbs and past tense. Through conversation with Native teachers and talking in front of other people, they will have the English skill to say what they want to say using their own words.

•Literacy

Building on the phoneme and phonics skills students learned in Kinderschool, they practice dictation by writing what they hear and then analyze any errors. Reading then becomes easier, even previously unseen words. Children can use pictures and words to convey their personal thoughts. It is a reading and writing course based on the English language. We use workbooks, graded readers and phonics training to assist them in learning to read and write. We like to instill a love of reading. We train in the four areas of reading, writing, listening and speaking.

•Activity

We have seasonal topics and themes to develop creativity. These subjects are about predicting outcomes and observing their validity through experiments. These activities involve creativity and logical thinking. Through wonder and enjoyment of the process children become curious to learn more about these subjects.
